

Staying the Night at the Ronald McDonald House

I will be sleeping at a new house tonight. It is called the Ronald McDonald House.

I can feel nervous or scared but everything will be fine.

I will stay with my family in the parking lot.

I will walk in the front door with my family.

I will try to be safe and calm. My family will be so happy.

When we first walk in, we will see this window with a nice worker to welcome us.

This is the lobby where I will wait while my family checks in at the desk.

I can watch the TV, sit down, or keep busy with items I brought from home. I can ask to use some toys to help me stay calm if I need them.

I will stay in the lobby until it is time to go to our room.

We might take the elevator or the stairs to our room. I will go through the elevator doors one time. I will only press the button I am told to press.

I will stay with my family. I will walk on the stairs and in the hallways.

I will try to listen to my family and follow all directions.

Our room may look like this. I will sleep in one of the beds.

This is our bathroom. There is a shower/bathtub, a toilet, and a sink.

The Ronald McDonald House is different than my house but it is a very nice place.

Everyone is so kind there and they make me feel good.

I will try to tell my family if I feel scared or nervous. They will understand and try to make me feel better.

I will try to listen and follow all directions.

I will be going back home soon.
